To Whom It May Concern:

As an educator and researcher, to me one of the most fulfilling and rewarding opportunities is to write letters of recommendation for my former and current students. This letter of recommendation is written as a strong endorsement for Indigo Miller, who has submitted an application for the UC Study Abroad program which will be hosted by Richmond, The American International University in London.

I have known Indigo for three months as a student at the University of Canberra. In my course Strategic Communication Research & Planning in the Faculty of Arts and Design, she exhibited superior communication and analytical skills and made numerous meaningful contributions to our class discussions. Her eagerness to learn and hold herself accountable as a student is nothing short of impressive.

It should be noted that, beyond her academic talent, Indigo is very consistent and self-motivated. While studying abroad in Milan, Italy, she volunteered to teach English to primary and high school students in Milan and participated in volunteering at the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (RSPCA). In addition, she has been involved in peer-mentoring activities as a committee member of University of Canberra Marketing and Advertising Society.

I highly recommend Indigo for your program, as I find her to be a motivated student with a strong interest in serving the needs of the community. The opportunity to interact with fellow students in your program will help her become better prepared for a future career. I sincerely hope Indigo will have opportunities to grow professionally with your program. Indigo has my full support and strong recommendation. Please do not hesitate to contact me by phone (+61 2 6201 2945) or by email (yoonso.sang@canberra.edu.au) if I can provide you with any additional information.

Sincerely,
